

Quality, Environmental Protection and Occupational Safety Policy

Rohde & Schwarz has always believed in sustainable management, combined with the highest standards of quality, safety and ecology. We are committed to this standard established by our founders.

Our products are known for their utility, reliability, environmental sustainability and energy efficiency.

Our management system and the business processes are subject to continuous analysis and improvement. That is essential if we are to take into account the expectations of our customers and relevant interested parties and manage our business sustainably. This ensures the company's success.

The annual targets derived from the corporate strategy support our commitment to continuous improvement.

Products and processes are developed on the basis of the latest technological standards. We see it as our duty to protect the environment and therefore see it as a priority to conserve resources. In this context, we identify and assess the effects of our business activities on the environment and climate change.

Quality management, occupational safety and environmental protection are management tasks. Our managers promote the implementation of our management system by acting as role models, always treating the health and safety of our workforce as a top priority.

Our qualified employees actively help to achieve these goals by acting in accordance with safety, environmental and quality standards.

We strictly observe and implement all relevant laws, standards and regulations as well as contractual obligations. We also utilize any other information offering improvements in safety and environmental protection as it becomes available.

To the same extent that we adapt to the individual requirements of our customers, we require our business partners, where appropriate, to adopt our principles and guidelines. In that way we contribute as a member of society to environmental responsibility, occupational safety and high-quality procurement parts.

We cooperate on a trusting and open basis with our customers, suppliers, public authorities, institutions, other companies and the public.

ROHDE & SCHWARZ